Module Description

This introductory course provides freshmen with a flavour on the history of the pharmacy profession (the heritage of pharmacy). It will also highlight sources of drugs, introduces channels and opportunities of professional practice, and briefly describe the various drug obtaining- and formulation-processes. Besides, students will know, in brief, the principles and rules of the “prescription” and its ramifications, rules for prescribing and possible interactions of drugs, their risks and ways to deal with them.