Module Description

This course deals with the biological methods employed in the identification (screening) and quantitative estimation (bioassay) of pharmacological activities of new molecules. Pharmacopoeial bioassay procedures of hormones and other biological materials will be also studied. The course includes also the pharmacopeial, legal and ethical requirements of these procedures and their limitations.