Module Description

This course presents a systematic clinical description of microbial diseases and their characteristics. It also explains the types of pathogen, their mode of transmission, incubation periods, and epidemiology. Lastly, it describes ways for their control (prophylaxis) and treatments (management).